Yanks Grind Dodgers Underheel; Win Game, Series in 9-0 Walkaway

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK —(INS)—Murder!

That's the only way to describe what the New York Yankees committed at Ebbets Field this cool sun-splashed Tuesday.

They assassinated the defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers 9-0 in the seventh and final game of an enchanting and record-setting World Series.

They fell on Brooklyn's 27-game winner, Don Newcombe, with a vengeance which, if transferred to the prize ring, would have required the referee to stop the fight. In Johnny Kucks they presented a supberb thrower who gave up only three hits in weaving his shutout.

YOGI BERRA hit two great home runs off Newcombe in the first three innings, each time driving in a man ahead of him. Elston Howard, one of two righthanded hitters Casey Stengel gambled on Tuesday in face of righthanded Brooklyn pitching, homered off the huge and tragic Newcombe and drove him away in the fourth to a shower of boos and water.

THIS WILL be a series to be rolled on the tongue of fandom like a fine brandy for generations to come. There occurred in the first six games, such rustproof events as Sal Maglie's victory in the first game, the roul of the Yankees in the second, the three straight the Yankees won at the stadium—including Country Slaughter's comeback and Don Larsen's incredible perfect game — and the record-filled sixth game. In the latter, Brooklyn tied up the series count with Clem Labine's remarkable 10-inning 1-0 shutout over Bob Turley.

The 33,782 who filled Ebbets Field Tuesday, swelling to 345,903 the total series crowd — which meant a final gate of $2,173,254 59—came in search of the ultimate thrill. Berra was there to disperse it early, hitting a two-run homer in the first and again in the third.

There was little mercy in the Yanks.

After Yogi's two home runs, Skowron must have looked like the softest touch of the 20th century. But he belted the ball into the seats in lower left, the record-smashing second grand slammer of the series, and only the sixth such slap in all the annals of these autumn meetings.

Berra, who played the series under the stress of knowing his mother was having a leg amputated in St. Louis, led the hitters with a .400 average. His ten runs batted in—eight of them off Newcombe—broke Lou Gehrig's old record set in 1928. The 12 Yankee home runs was another record, replacing that of the 1952 Yanks.

In final retrospect, the downfall of the Dodgers will be remembered in terms of great Yankee pitching. The bums scored one run in the final three games, a lone tally in 28 innings.

Critic Ranks 'War and Peace' With 'Gone With The Wind'

Dick Kramer
Daily Universe Movie Critic

Tolstoy's epic novel, "War and Peace," becomes one of the greatest motion pictures since "Gone With the Wind."

This spectacular movie was filmed entirely on location in Italy at the staggering cost of $9 million. More than 7 million extras were used at one time or another during the filming.

The picture's extensive costuming was estimated to have cost $1.5 million, Audrey Hepburn's wardrobe cost $400,000.

During the early part of 1812 England, Spain and Portugual formed an alliance to surpress the Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte of France.

Napoleon was still victorious when Russia joined the alliance. It was this that prompted Napoleon to invade Russia thus causing one of the bloodiest wars in the annals of history.

With this as a background, Hepburn, Henry Fonda, and Mel Ferrar, with an excellent supporting cast, give us a film of extraordinary virtue.

Pioneer director King Vidor again proves his genius in the filming of the battle scenes, many of which could possibly make screen history.

Miss Hepburn is almost sure of a triumph in the role of Netesha, countess in the Royal Court of the Czar of Russia.

One should be prepared to sit for quite a spell when viewing the picture. Its running time is four hours with an intermission.

Honor Code Enforcement Sees Changes

by Vicki Soha
Daily Universe Writer

BRIGHAM Young University Honor Council has grown from a punitive body to a counseling body in seven years.

According to Howard Larsen, chairman of the Honor Council, the reformation will help BYU students by giving them a greater counseling service.

Since the organization of an Honor System in BYU in 1949, a continuing process of development has gradually shaped the Honor System of today. A harsh judicial system was set-up in the early experimental days but was dropped because of its negative character.

SINCE THEN, after study and consideration, the Honor System has been reconstructed to function on a more positive basis. The council believes that the rebuilding has placed the code in closer harmony with concepts and ideals of brotherhood of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. This was done in the belief that it is right and desirable to offer help to anyone demonstrating a weakness.

The revision is a final break from the old judicial system and allows the establishment of the counseling relationship.

Composed of sixteen members, the council represents each class; three graduate students, four seniors, four juniors, three sophomores, and three freshmen.

Presiding over the meetings is a chairman who is selected each year by the dean of students, student coordinator, studentbody president, studentbody president-elect, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Honor, the previous chairman of the Honor Council and is approved by the studentbody senate. This appointment makes him responsible to both the faculty and the studentbody.

LAST YEAR the Honor Council reviewed approximately 200 cases. Eighty-five to 90 per cent of these cases were closed, successfully helping the student to comply with the provisions of the code.

Family Living College Sponsors Informative Sessions for Coeds

HERITAGE HALLS residents witnessed during the past week demonstrations on menu planning given by Mrs Helen Wakefield and Mrs. Sheronne Valentine, members of the staff of the College of Family Living

Last Thursday afternoon 32 women and head residents from buildings 1 through 12 gathered in Rogers Hall where they watched a day's meals prepared and learned to plan nutritious meals for the week using low cost inexpensively - prepared foods

Some of the new ideas presented included: a quick recipe for creamed chicken and peas served in toast cups using canned chicken soup as the base; an attractive fresh fruit bowl, how to prepare and serve a pot roast with vegetables, "quickie" orange cloveleaf rolls made from biscuit mix, and a delicious inexpensive Bavarian cream using whipped canned milk

After the demonstration a drawing was held for the pot roast dinner which was won by Sandra Evans, Salt Lake City, Elementary Education major

Those present enjoyed tasting the Bavarian cream and the rolls.

THE DEMONSTRATION was repeated Monday for buildings 13 through 24 and was attended by an enthusiastic group of would-be "chefs".

Marlene Cutler, Salt Lake City, a major in office management won the pot roast dinner which she shared with her five roommates.

Bulletins were passed out containing suggested menus for one week, and recipes for the dishes prepared in the demonstration. Copies are available for women students who missed the demonstration, and may be obtained by asking for them in Rogers Hall 9B.

The meetings were hled in the southwest basement room of Rogers Hall, which is maintained as a service center for all women in campus residence halls The room is equipped with eight sewing machines where girls may sew, and a kitchen area where they may receive help with management problems or cooking.

THERE ARE copies of many current magazines which girls may use in the room. There is also a shelf of cook books and a file of tested recipes, menu ideas, and party helps.

Homemaking Education Department of the College of Family Living has a trained consultant on duty during the day and evening to help women students with any homeliving problems.

Many women have already taken advantage o fthe services, receiving help on everything from grooming and how to do a washing to help with personal sewing

The room is open from 10 a. m to 9:30 p. m. on weekdays and from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Saturdays.

Home Economics Consultants on duty are Mrs Helen Wakefield, Mrs. Sheronne Valentine, Gayle Case and Nelda Clark. They may be reached by phone for help at FR 3-5500, Ext. 530.

Periodically they will present demonstrations to help with family living problems, particularly meal planning and cooking.

Tackle Named Top Lineman

Dave Hanks, 6'2", 215 pound tackle from Burley, Ida., steps up as this week's Lineman of the Week in the Daily Universe. Considered by some to be one of the better line prospects to come out of Idaho in recent years, Hanks missed the 1955 season because of an injury. However, he has been making up for lost time so far this year, seeing a lot of action in the Cougars' first four games

An animal husbandry major, Hanks is a junior this year, and has a year of eligibility remaining.

Team Progress, Shape Pleases Frosh Coach

Jerry Cuningham
Daily Universe Sports Writer

Rumblings from the frosh practice field: The Brigham Young University Kitten is early maturing into a rough, tough Cat.

Coach Max Tolbert and his aides explain that the infant Cougar's appetite for football is nearly insatiable.

"A steady diet of hard blocking, tackling and running has only whetted the team's appetite," explained Tolbert, who has the job of nurturing the Kittens into maturity.

Gleefully looking forward to scalping the Indian Papoose Nov. 16 in Provo, the Kittens are assiduously sharpening their young claws on all phases of pigskin warfare.

"They run us ragged keeping up with them," Tolbert quipped as he walked off the practice field at 6:30 after a tough 3½ hour session. "I've never coached a more eager team," he added as the Kittens hit for the showers 30 minutes after the varsity had called it quits for the night.

Tolbert was eager to single out several of his promising linemen for special praise, lauding the play of Lonnie Dennis, Rex Reeves and John Kapele, outstanding tackles.

He was also elated over the play of ends Thom Bloom and Bary Merrill, asserting that the team was especially strong in this position.

BULLETIN

A rumor has started circulating blaming Daily Universe Editor Ralph Barney for the disappearance of Pogo from the editorial pages of this newspaper.

Barney has reportedly decided that he can write far more editorials for each paper if the room used by Pogo and his friends was made available for that purpose.

An investigation is being made and further details will be printed as they are uncovered.

That's Rich

by Rich Hall

NOW, THAT Brigham Young University has a free weekend away from the football wars perhaps it would be a good time to step back and look at just how the Cougars have done so far this season.

In the win, loss column things don't seem very bright, with a three loss, one tie record But one has to dig a little deeper to come up with the true pictur.

THIS YEARS Cat squad is a vast improvement over last season's edition. Just before the Wichita game Head Coach Harold Kopp stated that he planned to put an inmproved team on the field each game day, and up to date he has followed that plan well.

It is becoming more and more obvious that one of the main Cougar deficits this year is lack of depth. The most recent example of this was the Utah game For three quarters BYU made a contest out of it and then they began to wear out The result was a Redskin walk-away in the fourth quarter.

THE OTHER clubs the Cats have faced this year have all been deeper as far as experinced reserves go. They could substitute freely, several using the alternate unit system where every 7½ minutes they send in a new team.

BYU hasn't had anywhere near the depth needed to combat this type of set up. And after facing a new man every 7½ minutes for three quarters a fellow tends to get a little tired.

IN THE UTAH game the Cougars defense looked good and for the first time this season han an offense that looked capable of going some place. The BYU touchdown came on a 17 play 73 yard march. True, a fifteen yards of that drive came through a pnalty assessed against the Utes. But that cannot take away from the fact that the Cougars generated a sustained scoring drive.

Things aren't as dark football-wise around Cougarville as one might suspect. This team is going to win a few games this season, so let's stick witlr them.

Women's Intramural Volleyball Tourney Competition Gets Underway This Week

Monday and Thursday nights in the Women's Gym one may see plenty of action produced by the Women's Intramural volleyball tournament.

The independents and P. E. majors tournaments begin Thursday at 6:30 p.m. It should be an interesting tournament with the many good teams entered, according to managers Yvonne Davenport, Merdian, Ida., and Shirley Taylor, Meeker, Colo.

Few social units have shown interest in their tournament which it began Monday at 6:30 p.m., but the teams signed up look sharp, according to manager Yvonne Elzinga, Hunter.

For the winning teams there will be team and individual awards presented at the Women's Intramural awards banquet
